AWARD WINNER 2022

LA SCALA
RICHARDS AND SPENCE

“La Scala really stood out to us as a clear winner in this category, for the way it elevates the use of masonry through a sense of plasticity. La Scala has a true topographic sensibility with great depth, both in a vertical and horizontal fashion. There’s a desire from other designers and clients, nationally, for a similar sophisticated approach to the use of masonry in architectural design.”

COMPETITION OVERVIEW

The Kevin Borland Masonry Award will reward and showcase concrete masonry in commercial and residential architectural design.

Projects in this category must be built primarily for commercial or residential purposes. Commercial projects can include government, public, health, education and multi-residential constructions. Residential projects can include single-dwelling houses. Concrete masonry must be a feature of the design process. Rendered masonry is not considered a design feature.

The award is named after Kevin Borland, who was born in West Melbourne on 28 October 1926. Borland's designs, more than those of any other architect, have shaped the trajectory of Melbourne architecture. His works include the Melbourne swimming and diving stadium for the 1956 Summer Olympics as well as the Harold Holt Memorial Swimming Centre in Melbourne's Glen Iris in 1968 to 1969. As well as an innovative architect, Borland was a generous patron of younger architects and an inspiring and much-loved design studio teacher.
